

The DAILY HERALD has nearly DOUBLE the circulation of either contemporary paper published in Los Angeles. As an advertising medium it is consequently of DOUBLE their value.

The Agricultural Society.

A meeting was held at the Clarendon Hotel yesterday morning, to settle the business connected with the late meeting.

Considerable preliminary conversation took place, in the course of which this journal received, as might be expected, any amount of adverse criticism and uncomplimentary notices. The real business of the meeting consisted in auditing accounts and settling the financial obligations. We are informed that the bills received were very heavy, and that accounts up to $2,100 were passed. The association still thinks that the HERALD has been unjust, that is, as far as we can learn, opinion is about equally divided.

The HERALD favors, and hopes to favor in all coming time, the development of the country, through the means of agricultural associations, and by other modes; but it will always reserve the right to oppose the unworthy and sanction the meritorious in everything pertaining to the interests of the people. The association, as a body, is the best in the State. It is the ring inside of the association that we fight. Therefore the sooner uncompromising enmity is declared openly between monopolies and cliques and the HERALD, the better. From the first issue we promised independence. We pledged ourselves to acquiescence to any party or clique, and, as far as any party or clique enters into any body, society or corporation, so far will this journal fight it or them.

The statement in this journal that it had written more, done more, and worked harder for the association, than any other Los Angeles journal has not been denied. When it is, the HERALD will give abundant proof that the statement is incontrovertible. Our fight is against measures, not men, and it rests with the people of Southern California to decide whether they will support a fearlessly outspoken journal, or whether they desire to relapse into the old rut made by the wheels of selfish rings. Let the bitterest opponents of this journal turn to the files of the paper from the second of October until the last day of the Fair, and they dare not deny the assistance it has given them. Let them turn to our files since, and they will find that the severe and uncompromising criticisms are but unpleasant truths, which were better told now than later. As to the innuendoes that the District will lose the appropriation from the State next year, that is another monopoly trap to catch the unsuspecting. Next year will probably see the best agricultural exhibition, and the best races ever held here; and long before the fair is held the Association will own that they have to thank, instead of to condemn, the LOS ANGELES DAILY HERALD.

Anaheim Items.

The Californian, of the 22d, furnishes the following items:

On the morning of Wednesday, Nov. 17th, occurred the first rain of the season. Since that time the weather has been cloudy with slight showers of rain on Thursday and Wednesday mornings. The rain-fall, as furnished by Dr. Higgins, was on the 19th inst., one-half of an inch, on the 20th inst., one-sixteenth on the 21st one-sixteenth, making a total of five-eighths of one inch.

Messrs. Stevens and Tompkins of Westminster, have killed and packed two hundred hogs this season. They will slaughter about three hundred more.

Sacriste, Elliot & Co. are contemplating establishing a branch of their woolen depot in Anaheim. Such a store would prove profitable to them, and we know that it would benefit most materially our countrymen.

The storm which prevailed at Anaheim Landing on last Saturday, was the most severe one that has happened this season. So powerful was the action of the breakers, that a new surf line, and the lighter to which it was attached drifted on a sand bank.

Everything indicates that the 3d of December will be a gala day. It is believed that every lodge in the county will send a large representation to take part in the ceremonies attending the dedication of the new Old Fellows' Hall, on that day. A cordial invitation is extended to the public of Anaheim and vicinity, to participate in the festivities.

A Grange was organized under the title of Westminster Grange on Wednesday, by Deputy T. A. Gray of Los Angeles. We are indebted to him for the following list of officers and members: Master, M. B. Craig; Overseer, D. W. Lawton; Lecturer, R. Strong; Steward, John Anderson; Assistant Steward, Con. Howe; Treasurer, J. D. Bowley; Secretary, H. Stevens; Gatekeeper, J. Davis; Lady Asst. Steward, Mrs. V. C. Anderson; Ceres, Miss Sarah Patterson; Flora, Mrs. F. Bowley; Pomona, Miss Martha Edwards; Chaplain, Geo. Danekin. The members are as follows: L. P. Webber, W. F. Poor, R. Eccles, J. R. Davis, Joseph Bingham, Thomas Edwards, J. A. McFadden, G. M. Crittenden, G. Tompkins, L. M. Jaquette, John Mack, Mrs. H. Stevens, Mrs. A. V. Lawton, Mrs. G. Danekin, Mrs. J. Bowley, Mrs. W. G. McPherson, Miss Ella A. Jaquette.

What has become of the men who contracted with our citizens to light the town with gas? The ninety days have nearly expired, and we still are compelled to trust in the tender mercies of the Anaheim "ring" for a supply of that article.

Late Telegrams.

One hundred iron workmen on the steamer Costa Rica struck for higher wages, but Superintendent Waddell threatened to plank her up, take her out of the dock and send her to New York for men. This closed the strike and they went to work again.

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—Cole Gunning, the well known burglar, was taken from the penitentiary where he has just completed a six months' term, and locked up at police headquarters on charge of complicity in the Nathan Phillips murder. John T. Irving, Irving implicates both Gunning and Kelly in the murder by stating that the former killed Nathan while Kelly and he were waiting in the house. It is also stated that Kelly is under arrest.

Increased activity in the Brooklyn Navy Yard; twenty-six hundred men at work; six vessels are preparing for service. A Spanish official report shows that over one hundred of the Virginians people were executed.

The reported personal suspension of Thompson, President of the Pennsylvania railroad, is denied. About 4,000 Germans held a meeting to-night in Germania Hall to express sympathy with Cubans. S. S. Cox had a series of resolutions which he intends to lay before Congress. Animated addresses were made by prominent Germans.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—Reports of further acts of violence toward Minister Sickles at Madrid need official confirmation. There is no reason to believe, after searching investigation, that there were any irregularities in the registration papers of the Virginians.

A Cabinet meeting was held to-day, the longest and most important ever held under Grant's administration. Nothing is or can yet be known as to the conclusions reached. The President is evidently in full accord with the general sentiment of the country, and will do nothing which may by implication place Government in a wrong position. He will submit the whole matter to Congress when it meets.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 21.—A large and enthusiastic meeting will be held here to-night for the discussion of Cuban affairs.

CHARLESTON, Nov. 21.—The news from Madrid causes much excitement. Much anxiety is felt about the condition of Fort Sumter and Moultrie.

MADRID, Nov. 21.—It is rumored that the insurgents of Cartagena intend to surrender. This will leave the entire fleet of iron-clads at the service of the Government in case of war with the United States.

MADRID, Nov. 21 (Midnight).—Sickles has suspended preparation which he was making to leave the city.

LONDON, Nov. 21.—An explosion in Wingate colliery to-day killed several miners.

THE VIRGINIA AFFAIR.

WASHINGTON, November 10.—Secretary Fish consented to be interviewed to-day on the subject of the Virginian case. He was asked whether the United States would not operate in favor of humanity there, while unauthorized filibusters were using the United States ports to fit out expeditions, contrary to law and treaty. He stigmatized the recent and preceding summary executions by the Spanish volunteers as inhuman and atrocious slaughters; but intimated that the only proper way to stop them was to act directly upon the Spanish home Government through our Minister.

Mr. Fish said that his natural sympathies were with the Cuban cause, but could not operate in favor of humanity there, while unauthorized filibusters were using the United States ports to fit out expeditions, contrary to law and treaty. He stigmatized the recent and preceding summary executions by the Spanish volunteers as inhuman and atrocious slaughters; but intimated that the only proper way to stop them was to act directly upon the Spanish home Government through our Minister.

Mr. Fish believed that the existing Government in Spain was liberal and humane. The summary executions at Santiago might have been delayed had our Consul at that point, A. N. Young, of Kentucky, been at his post. Young, however, was either at the York House in Washington City, or somewhere between here and New York at the time. Mr. Hall, Acting Consul General at Havana, had no communications with Santiago in time to stop these murders. Moreover, only one of the four victims claimed to be an American. Ryan was probably a naturalized citizen, but the State Department could not act on hearsay. Nothing had been heard from Madrid since Saturday, and there was no probability of more information in a documentary form which the Secretary could act, for ten days to come.

Had our Consul at Santiago been in his place, a timely dispatch to Madrid might have stayed the execution, but the murders were rushed through in accordance with the devilish spirit of the authorities.

As to Santa Rosa, one of the victims, Mr. Fish said he had already saved him once from death, and that he was foolishly to risk his life a second time.

It having been reported that the Secretary instituted a comparison between the case of the Virginians and the Trent, Mr. Fish said that in this he was misquoted. He did say that the Cuban insurgents had been given the more direct assistance than the Alabama had given the Southern rebels, and for which we had summoned England to pay us fifteen millions of dollars. As to the capture of the Virginians by the Tornado, they were three distinct wars in which the case might be presented. If the Virginians were sighted in Spanish waters and chased to sea, or if she was sighted on the high seas and chased toward Jamaica, international law and treaty must decide the matter. If captured within a league of Jamaica, the British Government would have cognizance of the case. (Cincinnati Commercial.

THE CUBAN QUESTION.

The following is a portion of an article which appears in the New York Herald of the 13th Nov., on the Cuban question:

There are crimes which outrange humanity and exhaust the patience of the civilized world—crimes which, by their enormity, prompt the uprising of vigilance committees and the swift punishment of the offenders without the tardy process of the machinery of the law. Of such a character is the hurried butchery at Santiago de Cuba of fifty-six of the persons captured on the Virginian and carried into that port by a Spanish man-of-war. The atrocity of the act is so great as to render it difficult to write of it dispassionately and with that calmness of judgment necessary in the consideration of questions involving great national interests. The first impulse of the American people will be to avenge the murders that have been committed on the island that has been offered to us as a nation, by retribution as swift and terrible as the crime by which it has been provoked. The popular voice would applaud the action of the President if he should send a fleet of iron-clads to Santiago de Cuba to demand the surrender of the Spanish butcher Burriel, and of the commander of the Tornado, to be dealt with according to their deserts under the penalty of the destruction of the town, and the sinking of every Spanish war vessel in the harbor in case of refusal. The long list of outrages by which this last crime had been preceded has added to the sympathy of all Christian people, and the world would rejoice if its career of ruffianism and blood should be suddenly brought to a close by the just vengeance of an indignant nation. But we have duty and responsibilities which we cannot disregard, and which, no passion, however natural and however violent, should tempt us to forget. Our great strength as a nation and the feebleness of the tottering government which has offered us the insult, must exercise some degree of patience and to be calm as well as firm in our demand for reparation.

Fifty-six of the people found on board the Virginian have been murdered by the Spanish butchers in Cuba. We use the term "murdered" advisedly, for they had no trial and were under the lawful protection of the American flag, of which they could not be legally deprived until the Virginian had been proved before a competent court to have been other than an American vessel, and to have been the property of the United States. The evidence that the murder was a wilful one, committed with the full knowledge of the character of the crime, is proved by the words of the Governor of Santiago de Cuba, who declared that the prisoners would be slaughtered before any outside interference could be offered; by the interception of the telegram of the acting American Consul at Santiago de Cuba to our Consul at Jamaica, and by the cutting of the telegraph wires to prevent the escape of any orders to stay the executions from the Captain General at Havana or the home government at Madrid. There was not a pretence of law, therefore, to warrant the killing of the men, and the words and acts of the murderers prove that they were conscious that the crime would be prevented if time should be allowed for legal interference. Nothing that may hereafter be proved against the Virginian can alter these facts. But we now have more reason than ever to believe that the capture of the vessel was in violation of treaty obligations and international law, provided she was of American ownership. From all the accounts of the time consumed in the chase and the position of the Virginian when captured, it is certain that she was not in Spanish waters, but on the high seas when sighted by the Tornado. Such being the fact she was not liable to capture in time of peace, and her case is precisely similar to that of the Deerhound. Spain has persistently denied the existence of a state of belligerence in Cuba, and a nation must accept all the consequences of the position she chooses to assume. There can be no articles contraband of war if war does not exist; and unless the Virginian had been caught by the Spanish authorities violating any of the municipal laws or regulations of their ports she was not, according to the arguments of Secretary Fish, liable to search and seizure on the high seas, although she might have landed arms and men on Cuban soil a hundred times.

FOR COUNCILMAN.

A. F. WARNER is a candidate for member of the Common Council from the First Ward at the ensuing municipal election.

HITHERWARD.—The monopoly, the demagogues, the "rings," are all preparing to flood Sacramento with agents and emissaries during the first week of the session of the Legislature. They will all combine, for all have a common interest in robbing the people. In this state of the case would it not be well for the farmers and mechanics to take a personal interest in the organization of the Legislature and the election of a Senator? There are many granges and industrial guilds in the State. They are full of intelligence. Why not have them represented here, and taking as active an interest in political matters as the predatory and thieving classes are preparing for? It is an excellent way to strengthen the backs of the weak brethren, to have their most influential constituents visit them at the capital in times of extraordinary interest, that they may freely and directly confer with each other on the ways and means to defeat the common enemy. —[Sacramento Union.
